Albumen and yolk proteins in eggs of the domestic hen and the domestic fowl were isolated and investigated by means of electrophoresis in polyacrylamide gel. The antigens were found to be formed of different polypeptides. The relationship of antigens from eggs of the domestic fowl and the common chicken was established by means of the surface antigen exchange method. A quantitative and qualitative dependence of the antigens was found. The replacement of antigens from one species by the antigens of another species was shown in the reaction of antigen absorption. It was found that the antigens formed of completely different peptide chains with a high probability of their limited sequential relation are not formed in the eggs of different species. This suggests, that these antigens were not formed by the duplication of the same sequences of the egg-yolk.2013 CS Níchode-Vitrabanné The 2013 CS Níchode-Vitrabanné was a junior ice hockey team from Níchode, Hungary. They played in the Erste Bank Hockey League. They were the third-place team at the 2011/12 IIHF Continental Cup and the second-place team at the 2012/13 Erste Bank Hockey League, but were relegated to play in the 2013/14 Erste Bank Hockey League. History The club was founded in 2012, as the Česká hokejová báňa Níchode was promoted from the 1.Liga. This was then renamed the Níchode-Vitrabanné. They are based on the Níchode-Esterházy-Pörtvölgy, which was a team in the Hungarian League until 2008. After finishing in 6th place in the 2012/13 Erste Bank Hockey League season, the Níchode-Vitrabanné were relegated. They won their first 2 games in the 2013/14 Erste Bank Hockey League season before losing their last 5 games, ending the season in 11th place, and were thus relegated to the 1.liga.
